

Ardingly is a Woodard School

Our School was founded with the express purpose of educating young people through the prism of the Christian faith, and allowing this to infuse all that we do. We recognise the need to build upon strong foundations of Christian love, community and personal fulfilment inherent in our founder Nathaniel Woodard's vision, while creating and supporting meaningful and tangible expressions of these values in our dynamic and evolving College community today.

Nathaniel Woodard had a simple aim: he wished to build schools which at their heart were Christian communities, where children would be nurtured in the values of the Gospel and each could, within the limits of their own conscience, engage with Christ in the mystery of the bread and wine of the Eucharist. Today we are the proud successors of that inheritance. We welcome students from across the world, from all religions and none and retain at our heart the values we were founded on. We are a community of stewards and our aim is to produce young men and women, confident in their own faith and being, with a sense of justice for all - with a desire to make a difference to the wider world. Ardingly College is Nathaniel Woodard's "Jewel in the Crown".
